The Daily Oregonian.

No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it, ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUG. 18, 1863.

The News.

The telegraph has at length broken its long silence, and though its report is very meagre, what there is of it is quite favorable. The disaffection among the troops from North Carolina, in Lee's army, confirms previous statements in the newspapers of that State, and from other sources. We trust it will speedily come to a decisive and effective head—potential enough to influence and control the soldiers from other parts of the Confederacy, who seem now only to lack the leaders and a good opportunity to make a grand stampede to their homes from the ranks of rebellion "in arms."

The intelligence from Charleston continues to be encouraging. The good time is coming, and the brave boys seem to feel it in their bones. Even the Mercury, of that city, some days ago, confessed that "there was too much reason to fear lest the terrible and devilish machinery which the Yankees were piling up around the devoted and hated city, was too much for any defenses or fortifications to resist for any long period, and its capture was only a question of time." What a grand shout of patriotic triumph will ring through the land, when once more the noble old flag shall float over Sumter, and the foul birds of secession be driven from their nest in the birth-place of the great conspiracy!

Colonel James, the new Collector at San Francisco, has been for several years the warm personal friend and professional adviser of General Fremont. He was formerly a leading politician in Wisconsin. We think his appointment somewhat disturbs the arrangements of those who have managed political affairs of late in California, as it looks very much like the work of T. W. Park.

Beautiful Consistency.—Sensible people very naturally think it somewhat difficult to persuade the public that the true way of supporting the laws is to resist their authority, and oppose those whose duty it is to execute them. It would seem to be quite as hard to convince even the ignorant and credulous that the only mode of sustaining the constitution and preserving the Union is to violate every injunction of the one, and make no effort to save the other. Yet these are the very things which Northern Confederates are pretending to do. We say pretending, because their real purpose, disguise it as they may under honied words about constitutional rights, and freedom of speech and of the press, is the overthrow of law and order; the success of the rebellion; the permanent rupture of the Union, and the triumph of a base faction which seeks, under the name of Democracy, to obtain control of the country, that it may be sacrificed to their personal advantage, and promote the aims of their old Southern masters. Shame! everlasting shame on such recreant Northern demagogues! They will deserve eternal infamy.

Brigham Young's Indian Policy.—The Mormon governor, speaking of the operations of Indian agents of the government against the Indians, said—"I will, comparatively speaking, take one plug of tobacco, a shirt, and three cents worth of paint, and save more life and hinder more Indian depredations than they can by expending millions invested in an army to fight and kill Indians." Perhaps so; but will the old polygamist explain how, in that case, he is going to provide for the agents, some of whom, according to the present system, seem to be more the objects of patronage than the savages. In twelve years past we have known many who, on a salary of $1,500, have managed in some wonderful way, after a few years' service, to retire with comfortable fortunes of from ten to fifty thousand dollars. There would be no chance for such operations according to Brigham's plan, and of course it won't do—of course it never will.

Two Cent Postage Stamps.—To meet the demand created by the new postal law which fixes the rates on drop-letters, circulars, &c., at two cents, stamps of that denomination have been prepared by the Department, and will soon be issued. They are thus described by "Holbrook's United States Mail:"

They are black in color, and bear a finely engraved head of General Andrew Jackson—a design especially appropriate at the present time, when his well-known saying, "The Union must and shall be preserved," needs to be considered as something more practical than a mere piece of fine sentiment. The portrait of the old hero occupies nearly the entire surface of the stamp, and the character of the engraving is such that the process of defacement, to which it must unfortunately be subjected, is easily and effectually performed.

An Anxious Request.—Will the editor of the Dalles Journal state in what letter or speech of Daniel Webster, he found that sentence which is published every day in that sheet? Of course, he would not continue to quote it, after its genuineness had been denied thousands of times, without being able at once to prove that he had a right to do so. Therefore we call on him to do it.

Admiral Foote.—This eminent and patriotic officer of the navy, who recently died in New York, from wounds received in battle, was a native of Connecticut, born in 1807, the son of Sam. A. Foote, former Governor of that State. He entered the navy in 1822, and advanced through all grades to the highest, having served in the East Indies, where he routed the pirates on the coast of Africa; where he made the slave trade unsafe in the China seas; where he maintained the rights of American citizens and the honor of their flag. At the beginning of the war he succeeded Commodore Breese in command of the Brooklyn Navy-yard, and in the fall of 1861 was assigned to the command of the Mississippi river squadron, captured Fort Henry and aided in the taking of Fort Donelson, where he received the severe wound which caused his death. In concert with General Pope he took Island No. 10, after 23 days' siege, and subsequently besieged Fort Wright on the Mississippi. The Cleveland Herald gives the following touching sketch of the personal character of the deceased admiral:

In him was a rare blending of the most delicate sympathies of an exquisitely sensitive nature and a moral heroism that, in discharge of duty, walked fearlessly up to the cannon's mouth. Gentle as a child in his social relations, artless as infancy in his intercourse with his fellow men, he was the personification of a cheerfulness which was not insensible to danger, which was not recklessness, but a fearlessness nothing but a Christian heart can give to human nature. He was ready, at any moment, cheerfully to obey the temporary call of his earthly official superior, or the last great call of the Supreme Head to come up higher.

From the first of this sickness Admiral Foote believed it to be his last, and expressed himself ready to go, if that was the Divine will. How he fought for his country, that country knows; how he prayed for his country, only He who seeth in secret can know. Admiral Foote wore himself out in this war, and although it was one of his dearest wishes to live and fight again for the Union he laid himself down to die, as humbly, as resignedly and confidingly as a child goes to its bed of sleep.

Popularity of General Meade.—The popularity of General Meade with the army and people bids fair to equal even that of McClellan. He is not yet known personally to the army, some of the Brigadiers, even, not having formed his intimate acquaintance. His name, however, is resounded on all sides with eulogy and enthusiasm. At last a leader has come worthy of the confidence of a noble army. As General Meade rode through Frederick yesterday afternoon it was whispered about from neighbor to neighbor; soldiers conveyed the news to brother soldiers, and anxiety followed surprise. That feeling of natural curiosity which impels us all to go out of our way even to look upon a distinguished man was indulged in by citizen and soldier alike.

He stopped at the United States Hotel, and was soon visited by a deputation of the ladies of the city. On being presented woman's feelings were expressed woman's style. "God bless you, General," they would say, and with an emphasis that showed the words issued from the heart. They asked him to accept their buquets and wreaths in token of the patriotism of Frederick. "I thank you" said General Meade, "not for myself but for my soldiers; they have won the victory, and to them belong the laurels." General Meade turned to his staff officers, and to Gen. Pleasanton remarked, in the presence of the ladies, "One of these for you, Pleasanton; not only a brave but a bachelor." General Meade shook the ladies all by the hand, and expressed the pleasure he felt in meeting them.

He is exceedingly affable in conversation, easily approached, and of lively, engaging manners. With no outward pretensions to superiority, he preserves a dignity which is noticeable beneath his careless exterior. His form is gaunt and thin, impressing the idea of bodily tenacity rather than strength, and a capacity to endure fatigue that we could not predict of a more robust and invincible figure. His high-top boots and loose blouse are bespattered with mud, and, were it not for his shoulder straps and intelligent face, it would be difficult to distinguish that he was not a private in the ranks. His face is almost covered with beard, and his neck displays a leather stock that might have been used in the days of his ancestors. He is otherwise collarless, and his face is colorless, being of a ghastly pale, with thought, study and anxiety marked upon every lineament. His mind speaks through his eye, and tells you at a glance that before you stands a man who is equal to any responsibility, and not afraid to meet it any shape. His nose is of the antique bend, and is the most prominent feature of the face. He appears a nervous and restless man, quick to move, but not so quick that celerity would destroy steadiness. When addressed he turns suddenly on his heel, and is all attention. The more you see of him, the more you like him. The Army of the Potomac has known him only two weeks, and he is their idol.

General Meade is a man of earnest piety. While this is not an inseparable concomitant of good generalship, it is a quality not to be despised. There have been great captains who did not believe in God; but we can hardly recall an instance in which the leader of an army whose mission it was to defend liberty was not devout as well as brave. Cromwell was a "praying man." So was William Tell. So was Gustavus Adolphus. So was Washington. Among Generals of lesser renown, piety has gone hand in hand with valor. Havelock was at once the hero of the Indian Rebellion and the idol of a Christian Church. Stonewall Jackson divided his time between the labors of the camp and the exercises of the Sunday School and prayer meeting. The virtues of the Christian rivalled the genius of the soldier in our own gallant Mitchell.

It may be safe to say that the General who does not believe in a higher Power cannot very thoroughly believe in himself. His very assumption of self-confidence betrays at once his weakness and his want of vital faith. Even Napoleon, drunk as he was with self-assurance, was compelled to fall back upon the confession, that it was not himself that overturned thrones and made footballs of empires and principalities, but Destiny that was working through him. He saw that he was but an instrument in the hands of Another; and—reluctantly, it is true—confessed it.

His Share.—It is stated that the amount of prize money now standing to the credit of Admiral Dupont at the Navy Department, is not less than two hundred thousand dollars.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to August 12th.

Washington, Aug 12th.—Col. James of Mariposa, has been appointed collector of the port of San Francisco, in place of F. F. Low, resigned. Col. James leaves for California to-day.

Sales of five twenties during the last two weeks average over one million dollars per day.

A private letter reached here yesterday from a prominent officer at Winchester, saying that a rebel lieutenant, who deserted from Lee's army and came into our lines, says that great dissatisfaction exists among the North Carolina, Tennessee and Mississippi troops, particularly among the former. The condition of affairs in North Carolina is such that the State threatens mutiny unless the troops are sent back home. Once there they say they will throw down their arms and abandon the rebel cause, of which they are heartily sick. It is with great difficulty that officers can restrain expressions of dissatisfaction, which extends to some of the officers and is increasing among the rank and file of troops from the South-western States, who agree that there is no further use of resistance since Vicksburg and Port Hudson have fallen, and the national troops have possession of the Mississippi river. The Mississippians and Louisianians are also clamorous to go home. The defeat at Gettysburg seems to have broken the spirit of Lee's army, and great apathy prevails among his officers and men. The rebels are making desperate efforts to organize another cavalry force, and are impressing into the service all the horses in Virginia.

New York, August 12th.—The Herald's Morris Island correspondence, of the 7th, reports our position stronger and safer than ever. The confidence of our troops is unexampled. Although the rebels keep pouring in shells from Forts Wagner and Sumter and other fortifications, the protection of our troops is so complete that our casualties are hardly worth mentioning.

Something of Gen. Hooker.—An Eastern journal publishes the following extract of a letter from a personal friend of Gen. Hooker. We publish it, believing it may correct, in some degree, public impressions that are as erroneous as they are unjust:

You may feel some interest in knowing that I spent last Sunday in Baltimore with Gen. Hooker. He rejoices as earnestly as any other person in the success of General Meade, but feels most deeply the injustice done himself. It is some evidence, I think, of Hooker's fitness to command, that Meade took the army precisely as he left it, with the exception of reinforcements, and found it so ready for action and victory. You may ask—Why did not Hooker lead it to action and victory? The reason is simply this—that reinforcements were withheld from him which were given to Meade on the very day that he assumed command. Ever since the invasion began Hooker had been pleading for those reinforcements. He had said to Gen. Halleck and the War Department—"I am able, with the force I have, to whip Lee, but not to capture his army. The country will not be satisfied if Lee is permitted to get back, and he may as easily be captured as whipped. Give me Couch and the garrison (10,000 men) at Harper's Ferry." Halleck refused.

Having command at Harper's Ferry, Hooker then took the responsibility and ordered the evacuation. Halleck countermanded the order. Hooker then telegraphed, "I now demand reinforcements, or I earnestly beg to be relieved of my command." He was relieved, and the very messenger who brought Halleck's order to Meade brought the order giving him the forces for which Hooker had waited and begged in vain. Such is a simple statement of the facts. I said to the General, "It is too bad that you should have that splendid prize so near your hand and not be allowed to pluck it." He replied with a quivering lip, "It is a hard fortune."

I give you my word that the stories about his drunkenness are utterly false. So far from being drunk at Chancellorsville, the fact is that he was made insensible by the concussion of a cannon shot against a column upon which he was leaning, and spirits were wanted for his use by the surgeon, not a drop could be found at his quarters, and it was long before it could be obtained.

Anecdote of Stonewall Jackson.—An army correspondent tells us an anecdote, that has never been in print, of the late Stonewall Jackson. The scene occurred in Northern Virginia, while the rebel army was on its way to Maryland. A secesh farmer sought an interview with Jackson, and said:

"General, are you going into Maryland?"

"Did you seek an interview to ask me this question?" inquired the General.

"No sir," said the farmer, "but if you will inform me, I will tell you a secret."

"A secret, eh?"

"Yes sir."

"Can you keep a secret?" asked Stonewall eyeing the man sternly.

"Oh yes."

"Well, sir," said the General, "you keep yours and I will keep mine," and he rode off, leaving his butternut friend in a mass of bewilderment.

The Killing of McDaniels.—The Dalles papers give some particulars of this matter, from which it appears that Van Tichwell, the Boise expression, made some remark imputing fault to McDaniels, in regard to the Berryway matter, which displeased Mr. "M.," and he threatened to kill Van Tichwell, who was informed of the threat. When McD. spoke to him soon after his arrival at Canyon City, he immediately drew his revolver and shot McD. without speaking a word. Van Tichwell, after preliminary examination, was fully committed, and sent to the Dalles for trial.

DR. WM HALL'S BALSAM.—This highly efficacious and popular medicine astonishes, by its good effects, every CONSUMPTIVE sufferer who makes use of it, and those who have tried a thousand remedies in vain, will never regret its trial. A few doses will give proof of superiority over all other remedies known.

Liver Complaint Cured.
Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 19, 1853.
Messrs. A. L. Scovill & Co.—Gents: I have been afflicted with the LIVER COMPLAINT for more than four years, attended with most of the train, with constipation of the bowels and, at other times, with diarrhœa. During the last year I had constant pain about the liver and shoulder blade, and in my left side, great uneasiness when I lay upon it. I took DR. MOTT'S LIVER PILLS, according to the directions for three months, and am now a different man. I hadn't taken them but a short time before I felt great relief. I am able to do as much work as ever. My health is now restored. Yours truly, DAVID PORTER.

☞ In Every Age of the World, the professions have been slow to admit the value of new discoveries, or the expediency of adopting them in practice. It is not to the legal profession that we look for reforms in jurisprudence, neither do we find the advocates of medical reform among physicians. Each deprecates whatever is found to innovate upon received opinions and established usage. Hence the opposition which medical men too often exhibit to the use of private remedies, whatever their acknowledged value, or great efficiency in the cure of disease. No medicine has ever done more for the relief of human suffering than DR. OSGOOD'S INDIA CHOLAGOGUE. The certainty with which it cures Fever and Ague, and eradicates bile from the system is acknowledged by all. Do you prefer a speedy and effectual cure to irregular and scientific run of disease? Try the Cholagogue, and the object is accomplished. Then tell your suffering neighbor what it has done for you, that it may do the same for him.

Startling.—There was an exciting afloat yesterday throughout the city effect that, on Saturday last, somebo somebody else for something, in one Justices' Courts—with what result, we are not yet informed. We are incl ascribe this rumor to a deeply-laid sch the enemy to delude us into the belie we had at last obtained an item; for w for months past daily visited the court a shadowy expectation of something t up, and have invariably returned disapp and hopeless. We shall institute a inquiry as to the correctness of this and should it prove to be true, 'twill b gleam of sunshine through an Oregon and we shall again indulge in dreams o er days to come.

The Steamer Julia, on her arrival e Cascades last evening, brought ab assengers, and $4,000 in gold dust to argo & Co. There was a considerable ity of dust in private hands, but we ot ascertain the exact amount.

The Weather yesterday was exceed easant and bracing, the thermomet our o'clock in the evening indicating e shade and 98° in the sun.

Recorder's Court.—There was no ess of public interest transacted in the order's Court yesterday.

New Court-house.—We understand he County Commissioners have decided urchasing the property of Mr. Thos. P rd, situated on the west side of the P quare, as a site for the new Court-h We congratulate the commissioners on ision, as we consider that a more eli cation could not have been selected.

Epicurean.—All admirers of the ings of this life should not fail to visi vorite establishment known as the " onico," where they will constantly be led with the choicest luxuries of the sea he shade of the lamented Soyer must ice at the triumphs of his "Delmoni isciples.

Benefit of Mr. Edwin A. Reeves.— romising young actor announces a mos active bill for this evening, the occasio is first benefit in this city, comprising eat sensation drama of "Raffaelle the robate, or the Secret Mission and the Sig ing;" the last act of "Richard III," variety of singing, dancing, &c. Thi rtainly sufficient amusement for one ev g; and we sincerely hope that the eff the beneficiary to please the patrons of ama will meet with the success they hly deserve—a cordial greeting and owded house.

Shall we have Peace?—In the dark ur of our early revolutionary history, wh mid men shrank back and even the bra sitated at the prospect of a desperate a nequal contest with the mother country, most unknown man arose in the House elegates of Virginia and gave utterance ese words:

"It is in vain, sir, to extenuate the matte entlemen may cry peace, peace, but there o peace. The war is actually begun. * There is no longer room ope. If we wish to be free—if we wish reserve inviolate those inestimable privileg r which we have been so long contending we mean not basely to abandon the nob truggle in which we have been so long aged, and which we have pledged oursel ver to abandon, until the glorious object r contest shall be obtained—we must figh repeat it, sir, we must fight!"

This bold utterance rung through the la ke the voice of a trumpet, stirring the hear f the people, rousing them to a just compr nsion of the danger, and inspiring the ith that calm courage and high resolve whi n the end gave the thirteen colonies their i ependence and a place among the nations o earth. The fiery sentences of Patri enry have become classic; they are as f iliar to us as household words, and yet y they sound in our ears with new and star g significance. We pity the man so blin d by party or prejudice who can read the te raphic column at a time like this and n cho the words of the great Virginian—"W ust fight." We pity that political lead ho, when the foot of an invader is alread n the soil of a loyal State, when the sky ndiana and Pennsylvania is red with th ames of burning villages, when the hills an alleys of Maryland are swarming with th ebel hosts, when Baltimore and Washingto e almost at the mercy of an insolent enemy an coolly urge the North to sue for peace uch a man, we care not who he is or wha is station, is fit only to be a slave. Peace ou can have it at once on one condition. Cr hold, enough,' lay down your arms and beg fo uch terms as victors grant to the vanquished re you ready for this? Speak, men of th orth—citizens of the loyal States, the bloo f whose sons crimsons every battle-field fro Bull Run to Vicksburg, whose soldiers hav orne the flag of the republic in triump hrough the great valley, say are you read o confess yourselves beaten, and cry "peace. Away with the ignoble thought! It is a nsult to the gallant dead who have won fo the nation an imperishable renown. This i o time for smooth phrases and idle words national disaster, national ruin threatens us. Away then with the olive branch—give us the sword."

STARTLING.—There was an exciting rumor afloat yesterday throughout the city, to the effect that, on Saturday last, somebody sued somebody else for something, in one of our Justices' Courts—with what result, if any, we are not yet informed. We are inclined to ascribe this rumor to a deeply-laid scheme of the enemy to delude us into the belief that we had at last obtained an item; for we have for months past daily visited the courts, with a shadowy expectation of something turning up, and have invariably returned disappointed and hopeless. We shall institute a prompt inquiry as to the correctness of this report, and should it prove to be true, 'twill be as a gleam of sunshine through an Oregon mist, and we shall again indulge in dreams of better days to come.

THE STEAMER Julia, on her arrival from the Cascades last evening, brought about 60 passengers, and $4,000 in gold dust to Wells, Fargo & Co. There was a considerable quantity of dust in private hands, but we could not ascertain the exact amount.

THE WEATHER yesterday was exceedingly pleasant and bracing, the thermometer at four o'clock in the evening indicating 68° in the shade and [illegible] in the sun.

RECORDER'S COURT.—There was no business of public interest transacted in the Recorder's Court yesterday.

NEW COURT-HOUSE.—We understand that the County Commissioners have decided upon purchasing the property of Mr. Thos. Pritchard, situated on the west side of the Public Square, as a site for the new Court house. We congratulate the commissioners on their decision, as we consider that a more eligible location could not have been selected.

EPICUREAN.—All admirers of the good things of this life should not fail to visit the favorite establishment known as the "Delmonico," where they will constantly be regaled with the choicest luxuries of the season. The shade of the lamented Soyer must rejoice at the triumphs of his "Delmonico" disciples.

BENEFIT OF MR. EDWIN A. REEVES.—This promising young actor announces a most attractive bill for this evening, the occasion of his first benefit in this city, comprising the great sensation drama of "Raffaelle the Reprobate, or the Secret Mission and the Signet Ring;" the last act of "Richard III." and a variety of singing, dancing, &c. This is certainly sufficient amusement for one evening; and we sincerely hope that the efforts of the beneficiary to please the patrons of the drama will meet with the success they so richly deserve—a cordial greeting and a crowded house.

SHALL WE HAVE PEACE?—In the darkest hour of our early revolutionary history, when timid men shrank back and even the brave hesitated at the prospect of a desperate and unequal contest with the mother country, an almost unknown man arose in the House of Delegates of Virginia and gave utterance to these words:

"It is in vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. Gentlemen may cry peace, peace, but there is no peace. The war is actually begun. * * * There is no longer room to hope. If we wish to be free—if we wish to preserve inviolate those inestimable privileges for which we have been so long contending—if we mean not basely to abandon the noble struggle in which we have been so long engaged, and which we have pledged ourselves never to abandon, until the glorious object of our contest shall be obtained—we must fight! I repeat it, sir, we must FIGHT!"

This bold utterance rung through the land like the voice of a trumpet, stirring the hearts of the people, rousing them to a just comprehension of the danger, and inspiring them with that calm courage and high resolve which in the end gave the thirteen colonies their independence and a place among the nations of the earth. The fiery sentences of Patrick Henry have become classic; they are as familiar to us as household words, and yet to-day they sound in our ears with new and startling significance. We pity that political leader who, when the foot of an invader is already on the soil of a loyal State, when the sky of Indiana and Pennsylvania is red with the flames of burning villages, when the hills and valleys of Maryland are swarming with the rebel hosts, when Baltimore and Washington are almost at the mercy of an insolent enemy, can coolly urge the North to sue for peace? Such a man, we care not who he is or what his station, is fit only to be a slave. Peace! You can have it at once on one condition. Cry 'hold, enough,' lay down your arms and beg for such terms as victors grant to the vanquished. Are you ready for this? Speak, men of the North—citizens of the loyal States, the blood of whose sons crimsons every battle field from Bull Run to Vicksburg, whose soldiers have borne the flag of the republic in triumph through the great valley, say are you ready to confess yourselves beaten, and cry "peace." ## A Picture from the Hospital

HOW OUR SOLDIERS LIVE AND DIE

In a recent number of the Boston Commonwealth, we find the following sketch of a scene in one of the army hospitals at Washington, from the pencil of Miss M. Alcott, of Boston, who performs the duties of a nurse:

DAVID AND JONATHAN

One evening I found my [illegible] occupied by a large, fair man, with a fine face, and the serenest eyes I ever met. One of the early comers had often spoken of a friend who had remained behind, that the apparently worse wounded than himself might have a shelter first. It seemed a David and Jonathan sort of friendship. The man fretted for his mate, and was never tired of praising John—his courage, sobriety, self-denial and unfailing kindliness of heart, always winding up with: "He's an out and out fine feller, ma'am; you see if he aint." I had some curiosity to behold this piece of excellence, and when he came, watched him for a night or two before I made friends with him; for, to tell the truth, I was a little in awe of the stately looking man, whose bed had to be lengthened to accommodate his commanding stature; who seldom spoke, uttered no complaint, asked no sympathy, but tranquilly observed what went on about him, and, as he lay high upon his pillows, no picture of dying statesman or warrior was ever fuller of real dignity than this Virginia blacksmith.

NO HOPE

A most attractive face he had, framed in brown hair and beard, comely featured and full of vigor as yet unsubdued by pain; thoughtful and often beautifully mild while watching the afflictions of others, as if entirely forgetful of his own. His mouth was firm and grave, with plenty of will and courage in its lines, but a smile could make it sweet as any woman's; and his eyes, looking one fairly in the face with a clear, straightforward glance, which promised well for such as placed their faith in him. He seemed clinging to life as if it were rich in duties and delights, and he had learned the secret of content. The only time I saw his composure disturbed was when my surgeon brought another to examine John, who scrutinized their faces with an anxious glance, asking of the elder:

"Do you think I shall pull it through, sir?"

"I hope so, my man."

And as the two passed on, John's eye still followed them with an intentness which would have won a clearer answer from them had they seen it. A momentary shadow flitted over his face; then came the usual serenity, as if in that brief eclipse he had acknowledged the existence of some hard possibility, and, asking nothing, yet hoping all things, left the issue in God's hand with that submission which is true piety.

The next night, as I went my rounds with Dr. P——, I asked which man in the room probably suffered most, and to my great surprise he glanced at John.

"Every breath he draws is like a stab; for the ball pierced the left lung, broke a rib, and did no end of damage here and there; so the poor man can find neither forgetfulness nor ease, because he must lie on his wounded back or suffocate. It will be a hard struggle, and a long one, for he possesses great vitality; but even his temperate life can't save him. I wish it could."

"You don't mean he must die, doctor?"

"Bless you, there is not the slightest hope for him, and you had better tell him so before long—you women have a way of doing such things comfortably, so I will leave it to you. He cannot last more than a day or two at furthest."

I could have sat down on the spot and cried heartily, if I had not learned the wisdom of bottling up one's tears for leisure moments. Such an end seemed hard for such a man, when half a dozen worn out, worthless bodies around him were gathering up the remnants of wasted lives to linger on for years, perhaps burdens to others, daily reproaches to themselves. The army needed men like John, earnest, brave and faithful; fighting for liberty and justice with both heart and hand, a true soldier of the Lord. I could not give him up so soon, or think with any patience of so excellent a nature robbed of its fulfillment, and blundered into eternity by the rashness or stupidity of those at whose hands so many lives are required. It was an easy thing for Dr. P—— to say, "Tell him he must die," but a cruelly hard thing to do, and by no means as "comfortable" as he politely suggested. I had not the heart to do it then, and privately indulged the hope that some change for the better might take place, in spite of gloomy prophesies, so rendering my task unnecessary.

A SHORT AND SIMPLE STORY

After that night, an hour of each evening that remained to him was devoted to his ease or pleasure. He could not talk much, for breath was precious, and he spoke in whispers; but from occasional conversation I gleaned scraps of private history which only added to the affection and respect I felt for him. Once he asked me to write a letter, and as I settled pen and paper I said, with an irrepressible glimmer of female curiosity:

"Shall it be addressed to wife, or mother, John?"

"Neither, ma'am; I've got no wife, and will write to mother myself when I get better. Did you think I was married because of this?" he asked, touching a plain ring he wore, and often turned thoughtfully on his finger when he lay alone.

"Partly that, but more from a settled sort of look you have—a look which young men seldom have until they marry."

"I didn't know that, but I'm not so very young, ma'am—thirty in May—and have been what you call settled this ten years; for mother's a widow. I'm the oldest child she has, and it wouldn't do for me to marry till Lizzy has a home of her own, and Laurie's learned his trade; for we're not rich, and I must be father to the children, and husband to the dear mother, if I can."

"No doubt you are both, John; yet how came you to go the war, if you felt so? Wasn't enlisting as bad as marrying?"

"No, ma'am, not as I see it; for one is helping my neighbor, the other pleasing myself. I went because I couldn't help it. I didn't want the glory or the pay; I wanted the right thing done, and the people kept saying the men who were in earnest ought to fight. I was in earnest, the Lord knows! but I held off as long as I could, not knowing which was my duty. Mother read my feelings in the case, gave me her ring to keep me steady, and said 'Go:' so I went."

A short story and a simple one, but the man and mother were portrayed better than pages of fine writing could have done it.

A SOLDIER'S GRIEF

"Do you ever regret that you came, when you lie here suffering so much?"

"Never, ma'am; I haven't helped a great deal, but I've shown I was willing to give my life, and perhaps I've got to; but I don't blame anybody, and if it was to do over again, I'd do it. I'm a little sorry I wasn't wounded in front; it looks cowardly to be hit in the back, but I obeyed orders, and it don't matter in the end, I know."

Poor John! it did not matter now, except that a shot in front might have spared the long agony in store for him. He seemed to read the thought that troubled me as he spoke so hopefully when there was no hope, for he suddenly added:

"This is my first battle—do they think it's to be my last?"

"I'm afraid they do, John."

It was the hardest question I had ever been called upon to answer; doubly hard with those clear eyes fixed on mine, forcing a truthful answer by their own truth. He seemed a little startled at first, pondered over the fateful fact a moment, then shook his head with a glance at the broad chest and muscular limbs stretched out before him.

"I'm not afraid, but it's difficult to believe all at once. I'm so strong it don't seem possible for such a little wound to kill me."

THE LAST LETTER

"Shall I write to your mother now?" I asked, thinking that these sudden tidings might change all plans and purposes; but they did not; for the man received the order of the Divine Commander to march with the same unquestioning obedience with which the soldier had received that of the human one, doubtless remembering that the first led him to life, the last to death.

"No, ma'am; to Laurie just the same; he'll break it to her best, and I'll add a line to her myself when you get done."

So I wrote the letter which he dictated, finding it better than any I had sent for them; here and there a little ungrammatical or inelegant, each sentence came to me briefly worded, but most expressive, full of excellent counsel to the boy, tenderly bequeathing "mother and Lizzie" to his care, and bidding him good bye in words the sadder for their simplicity. He added a few lines with a steady hand, and as I sealed it, said, with a patient sort of a sigh, "I hope the answer will come in time for me to see it;" then turning away his face, laid the flowers against his lips, as if to hide some quiver of emotion at the thought of such a sundering of all the dear home ties.

These things had happened two days before. Now John was dying, and the letter had not come. I had been summoned to many death beds in my life, but to none that made my heart ache as it did then, since my mother called me to watch the departure of a spirit akin to this in its gentleness and patient strength. As I went in John stretched out both hands.

"I knew you'd come! I guess I'm moving on, ma'am."

He was, and so rapidly that even while he spoke, over his face I saw the gray veil falling, that no human hand can lift. I sat down by him, wiped the drops from his forehead, stirred the air with the slow wave of a fan, and waited to help him die. He stood in sore need of help, and I could do so little; for, as the doctor had foretold, the strong body rebelled against death and fought every inch of the way, forcing him to draw each breath with a spasm and clench his hands with an imploring look, as if he asked, "How long must I endure this, and be still?" For hours he suffered dumbly, without a moment's respite or a moment's murmuring. His limbs grew cold, his face damp, his lips white, and again he tore the covering off his breast as if the lightest weight added to his agony; yet, through it all, his eyes never lost their perfect serenity, and the man's soul seemed to sit therein undaunted by the ills that vexed his flesh.

SOLDIERLY SYMPATHY

One by one the men woke, and round the room appeared a circle of pale faces and watchful eyes, full of awe and pity; for, though a stranger, John was beloved by all. Each man there had wondered at his patience, respected his piety, admired his fortitude, and now lamented his hard death; for the influence of an upright nature had made itself deeply felt even in one little week. Presently the Jonathan who so loved this comely David came creeping from his bed for a last look and word. The kind soul was full of trouble, and the choke in his voice, the grasp of his hand betrayed; but there were no tears, and the farewell of the friends was the more touching for its brevity.

"Old boy, how are you?" faltered the one.

"Most through, thank Heaven!" whispered the other.

"Can I say or do anything for you anywheres?"

"Take my things home, and tell them that I did my best."

"I will! I will!"

"Good by, Ned."

"Good by, John, good by!"

They kissed each other tenderly as women, and so parted, for poor Ned could not stay to see his comrade die. For a little while there was no sound in the room but the drip of water from a stump or two, and John's distressful gasps as he slowly breathed his life away. I thought him nearly gone, and had just laid down the fan, believing its help to be no longer needed, when suddenly he rose up in his bed, and cried out with a bitter cry that broke the silence, sharply startling every one with its agonized appeal: "For God's sake, give me air!"

It was the only cry pain or death had wrung from him, the only boon he had asked, and none of us could grant it, for all the airs that blew were useless now. Dan flung up the window; the first red streak of dawn was warming the gray east, a herald of the coming sun. John saw it, and with the love of light which lingers in us to the end, seemed to read in it a sign of hope of heaven; for over his whole face there broke that mysterious expression, brighter by far than any smile which often comes to eyes that look their last. He laid himself gently down, and stretching out his strong right arm, as if to grasp and bring the blessed air to his lips in fuller flow, lapsed into a merciful unconsciousness, which assured us that for him suffering was forever past.

As we stood looking at him, the ward master handed me a letter, saying it had been forgotten the night before. It was John's letter, come just an hour too late to gladden the eyes that had looked and longed for it so eagerly—yet he had it; for after I had cut some brown locks for his mother, and taken off the ring to send her, telling how well the talisman had done its work, I kissed this good son for her sake, and laid the letter in his hand, still folded as when I drew my own away.

HELMBOLD'S Genuine Preparation.

'HIGHLY CONCENTRATED' Compound Fluid

EXTRACT BUCHU,

A POSITIVE AND SPECIFIC REMEDY

FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL

AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.

This Medicine increases the power of DIGESTION and excites the ABSORBENTS into healthy action, by which the WATERY OR CALCAREOUS depositions and all UNNATURAL ENLARGEMENTS are reduced, as well as PAIN and INFLAMMATION, and is good for MEN, WOMEN OR CHILDREN.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weaknesses arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion or Abuse,

ATTENDED WITH THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS:

Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Weak Nerves, Horror of Disease, Dimness of Vision, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Hot Hands, Dryness of the Skin, Loss of Power, Difficulty of Breathing, Trembling, Wakefulness, Pain in the Back, Flushing of the Body, Eruptions on the Face, Pallid Countenance.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on, which this medicine invariably removes, soon follows

Impotency, Fatuity, Epileptic Fits,

IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

Who can say that they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

"INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION,"

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, BUT NONE WILL CONFESS.

THE RECORDS OF THE INSANE ASYLUMS,

And the melancholy deaths by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion that

THE CONSTITUTION,

once affected by Organic Weakness,

Requires the Aid of Medicine,

to strengthen and invigorate the system, which invariably does.

A Trial will Convince the most Skeptical.

FEMALES! FEMALES! FEMALES!

OLD OR YOUNG,

Single, Married or contemplating Marriage.

IN MANY AFFECTIONS PECULIAR TO FEMALES the Extract of Buchu is unequaled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous state of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the Sex, whether arising from Indiscretion, Habits of Dissipation, or in the DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE!

No Family should be without it.

TAKE NO MORE BALSAM, MERCURY, OR UNPLEASANT MEDICINE FOR UNPLEASANT AND DANGEROUS DISEASES.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

AND

HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED ROSE WASH

CURES SECRET DISEASES,

In all their Stages, At Little Expense, Little or no change in Diet, No Inconvenience, AND NO EXPOSURE.

It causes a frequent desire and gives strength to Urinate, thereby Removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of Diseases, and expelling all Poisonous, Diseased and worn out Matter.

THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS

Who have been the victims of Quacks,

and who have paid heavy fees to be cured in a short time, have found they were deceived, and that the "POISON" has, by the use of "powerful Astringents," been dried up in the system, to break out in an aggravated form, and perhaps after marriage.

Use Helmbold's Extract Buchu

For all Affections and Diseases of the URINARY ORGANS, whether existing in MALE OR FEMALE, from whatever cause originating, and

NO MATTER OF HOW LONG STANDING.

Diseases of these Organs require the aid of a Diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

IS THE GREAT DIURETIC,

And it is certain to have the desired effect in Diseases for which it is recommended.

Evidence

of the most Reliable and Responsible character will accompany the medicines.

Certificates of Cures

From Eight to Twenty Years standing, with names known to Science and Fame.

"PHYSICIANS, PLEASE "NOTICE"

We make no secret of Ingredients. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is composed of Buchu, Cubebs and Juniper Berries, selected with great care by a competent Druggist. Prepared in vacuo by H. T. HELMBOLD, Practical and Analytical Chemist, and Sole Manufacturer of
